

A Path Forward for Alabama's Prison System

A HOST OF INTERCONNECTED PROBLEMS

Prisoners are not receiving the education, job training, and mental health services they need to succeed in life after prison. The current system is broken and needs to be replaced. The current system is broken and needs to be replaced. The current system is broken and needs to be replaced.

Prisoners are not receiving the education, job training, and mental health services they need to succeed in life after prison. The current system is broken and needs to be replaced. The current system is broken and needs to be replaced. The current system is broken and needs to be replaced.

Prisoners are not receiving the education, job training, and mental health services they need to succeed in life after prison. The current system is broken and needs to be replaced. The current system is broken and needs to be replaced. The current system is broken and needs to be replaced.

A SET OF SOLUTIONS & PATH FORWARD

1. Strategic prison construction by the state:

- The state should continue to invest in the construction of new prisons, including the new $1.2 billion Alabama Correctional Facility in the state capital city of Montgomery.
- The state should continue to invest in the construction of new prisons, including the new $1.2 billion Alabama Correctional Facility in the state capital city of Montgomery.
- The state should continue to invest in the construction of new prisons, including the new $1.2 billion Alabama Correctional Facility in the state capital city of Montgomery.

2. Increasing staff and reducing violence:

- ADOC should continue to invest in the recruitment and retention of staff, including the new $1.2 billion Alabama Correctional Facility in the state capital city of Montgomery.
- ADOC should continue to invest in the recruitment and retention of staff, including the new $1.2 billion Alabama Correctional Facility in the state capital city of Montgomery.
- The state should continue to invest in the recruitment and retention of staff, including the new $1.2 billion Alabama Correctional Facility in the state capital city of Montgomery.

3. Sentencing and parole reform now to reduce the prison population safely:

Alabama should continue to invest in the recruitment and retention of staff, including the new $1.2 billion Alabama Correctional Facility in the state capital city of Montgomery.

Alabama should continue to invest in the recruitment and retention of staff, including the new $1.2 billion Alabama Correctional Facility in the state capital city of Montgomery.

Alabama should continue to invest in the recruitment and retention of staff, including the new $1.2 billion Alabama Correctional Facility in the state capital city of Montgomery.

The state can continue on the path started in 2015 by:

- Investing in the recruitment and retention of staff, including the new $1.2 billion Alabama Correctional Facility in the state capital city of Montgomery.
- Developing a comprehensive plan for the recruitment and retention of staff, including the new $1.2 billion Alabama Correctional Facility in the state capital city of Montgomery.
- Launching a comprehensive plan for the recruitment and retention of staff, including the new $1.2 billion Alabama Correctional Facility in the state capital city of Montgomery.

GOALS OF ALABAMA'S PRISON SYSTEM:

- Protect public safety
- Make prisons safe for officers & incarcerated people
- Ensure constitutional levels of care
- Use taxpayer dollars on